Brian E. Wilkerson, M.U.R.P., - Bio

Brian has extensive successful experience in leadership roles with major corporations and entrepreneurial companies. He was the co-founder and CEO of WisdomNet, a consulting and technology company focused on the Strategy and Talent Management space. Founded in 2001, WisdomNet was self-funded and grew rapidly until 2007 when it was purchased by Watson Wyatt Worldwide, a global consulting and technology company with $2B in revenue and 7,000 associates around the world. Brian remained at Watson Wyatt as Global Practice Director until 2009 and continued to grow the practice formed from WisdomNet at more than 100% per year.

In addition to his successful entrepreneurial experience, Brian has held senior leadership roles in major corporations such as Andersen Consulting (now Accenture) and Level 3 Communications. He has worked with numerous corporate clients such as:

- Yamaha
- Hasbro
- MGM MIRAGE
- Edison International
- Microsoft
- eBay

He also has extensive experience leading consulting engagements and software implementations with government clients such as:

- US General Services Administration
- US Department of Defense
- US Postal Service
- State of Colorado
- State of California
- Boulder County
- Weld County
- City of Fort Collins

He has led a number of large-scale transformation projects for Fortune 500 clients and government agencies, as well as consulting with nearly a dozen successful technology startups including applications in Financial Services, e-Procurement, Oil & Gas, and many others. He has worked in multiple countries around the globe, with a particular emphasis on Asia.

Mr. Wilkerson speaks extensively on a range of topics such as workforce planning, innovation, and talent management for organizations such as The Conference Board, the Human Capital Institute and others. The press also regularly seeks him out for his insight on a number of topics and he has been quoted in diverse publications such as the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal, as well as others around the globe. He has also published a number of articles and book chapters. His educational background includes a Masters Degree in Urban & Regional Planning from University of Colorado and a Bachelors Degree from the University of Cincinnati.

Brian's role within ePRepSolutions is implementing the overall growth strategy and management of the business, as well as overseeing the overall quality of service.
